MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTORS

When the Centre began in 1992, we never imagined the tremendous scope of our work and diverse partnerships almost two decades later. The Centre is actively involved in educating the public and professionals in many disciplines on the impact of violence in the lives of women and children. Our research in the London community as well as our alliance with research centres in other provinces has placed us in the forefront of many critical societal issues. We are working with our education partners to identify the most promising strategies to promote healthy relationships. We are looking at how to prevent domestic homicides with our justice, health, and community partners. We are exploring the role of the workplace as well as neighbours, friends and families to recognize the warning signs of relationship violence. All our efforts remain focused on the same vision: A commitment to the development and application of knowledge on the prevention of violence against women and children through the promotion of innovation, collaborative relationships, and equality. This annual report captures our teamwork in a snapshot of activities, grants and publications. We appreciate all the support of our partners, advisory committee, research associates, funders and our extended family in the Faculty of Education. As Centre Directors we want to acknowledge the generous support of Western that has made our Centre sustainable through all the funds direct and in-kind for our space, support services and staff and professors' salaries.

Community Director

Overview of 2009

As a Centre committed to both research and education activities directed to preventing violence against women and children, we had a busy and productive year. None of our achievements are individual ones – our success depends on our centre's team working with partners across our community, Ontario, Canada and around the globe committed to addressing similar issues.

Our current research interests centre on the prevention of violence in schools, communities, and workplaces as well as major initiatives to enhance risk assessment and reduction strategies to reduce the likelihood of domestic homicide. We are exploring the impact of childhood and adult trauma as well as the health care and justice system response to abuse in collaboration with other Canadian universities. Our work has provided many benefits and opportunities for our Western colleagues and students. The media and public recognition of our work have provided an enhanced profile for Western in our cutting edge work in this area.

The report that follows details our research and education effort. Some of the highlights in 2009 include the following:

- 9 new grants representing an investment of $1,352,914 dollars
- 2 National conferences that brought academics and professionals from multiple disciplines and systems to address violence in the workplace and the prevention of domestic homicides
- 1 Provincial conference related to the promotion of healthy and equal relationships among youth

- 2 major think-tanks on violence prevention strategies
- 10 Community forums for Western faculty, students and community agencies
- 17 presentations in other communities
- 50 television, radio and newspaper interviews
- Engagement of over 800 undergraduate students and 25 graduate students from Education and Health Sciences on emerging issues in research and practice on violence against women & children
- 23 local, provincial and national committees

VISION STATEMENT

The Centre is committed to the development and application of knowledge on the prevention of violence against women and children through the promotion of innovation, collaborative relationships, and equality.

MISSION STATEMENT

Centre's role is to facilitate the collaboration of individuals, groups and institutions representing the diversity of the community to pursue research questions and training opportunities to understand and prevent abuse. It serves local, national and international communities by producing useful information and tools to assist in the daily work against violence toward women and children. We value our partners across the globe and across Canada as well as the essential work of our local community agencies. The partner we never overlook is Western and the many faculties and colleagues who work together with us on multiple projects and grants.

HISTORY

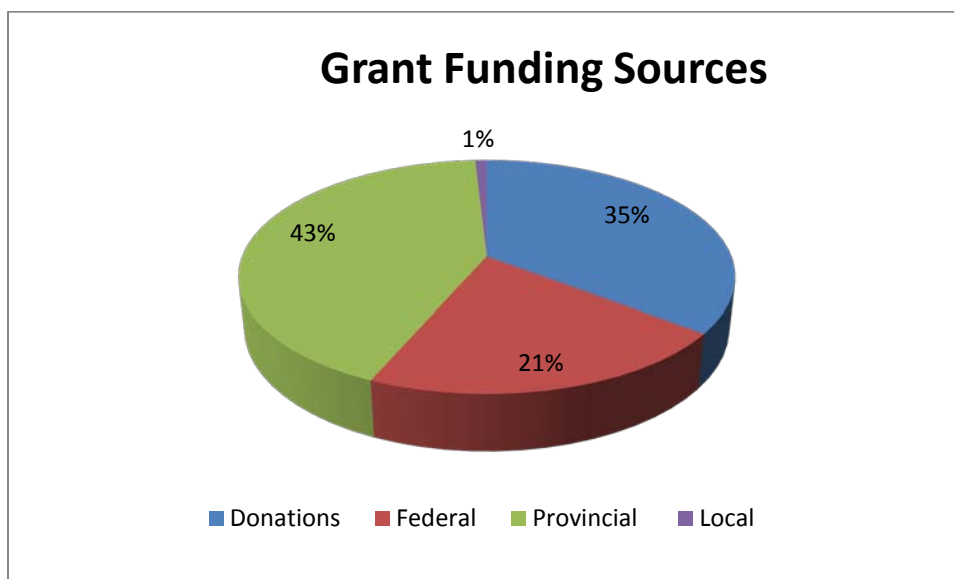

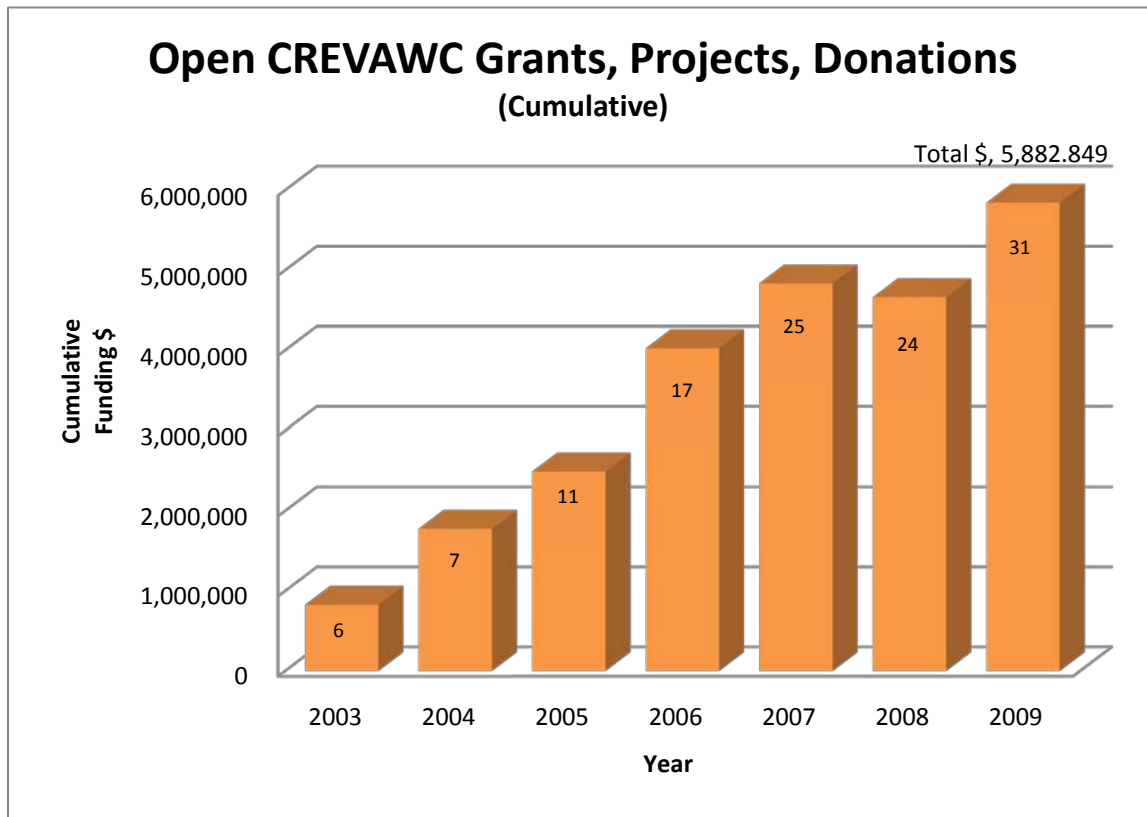

The Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women and Children (CREVAWC) was founded in 1992 as a collaborative venture between The University of Western Ontario, Fanshawe College and the London Coordinating Committee to End Women Abuse (a large organization comprised of violence against women service providers). The Centre was established in response to a Federal study on the problem of violence against women, triggered by the 1989 murder of 14 women at École Polytechnique in Montreal.

The CREVAWC joined the Faculty of Education at the University of Western Ontario in 2001. When the Centre moved to the Faculty of Education in 2002 there were 2.5 staff and $1 million from 2 grants. From 2002-2006 the Centre hosted smaller local conferences each year, a Research Day and a Speakers Series. At that time the CREVAWC had no B Ed or M Ed students. In 2009 the CREVAWC has 5 full-time staff with approximately $6 million in open grants. The Centre has hosted 6 major conferences and think-tanks, held more than 10 workshops with 10 Western partners, 12 community partners and 6 other universities in Canada. The CREVAWC is involved in teaching violence prevention (safe schools) at the graduate and undergraduate level for the Faculty of Education as well as graduate student supervision and participation as thesis examiners.

Dr. Peter Jaffe

Peter Jaffe is a Professor in the Faculty of Education at the University of Western Ontario and the Academic Director of the Centre for Research on Violence against Women & Children. He is the Director Emeritus for the Centre for Children and Families in the Justice System, which is a children's mental health centre specializing in issues which bring children and families into the justice system in London, Ontario. He has co-authored many books, chapters and articles related to children, families and the justice system including Children of Battered Women, Child Custody & Domestic Violence and Working Together to End Domestic Violence. He has presented workshops across the USA, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and Europe to various groups including judges, lawyers, mental health professionals and educators. Dr. Jaffe has been an expert witness in three Ontario inquests into domestic homicides. He is a founding member of the Chief Coroners Domestic Violence Death Review Committee. A significant portion of Dr. Jaffe's research is on the effectiveness of the Fourth R program. The Fourth R is a school-based violence prevention program which is included in the Ontario Ministry of Education's Registry of Bullying Prevention Programs and has been implemented in over 1000 schools across Canada. Dr. Jaffe is Principal Investigator in several grants held at CREVAWC and also co-investigator of grants held at other institutions including at CAMH-CPS. Dr. Jaffe is a member of many local, provincial and national committees and boards and has had a long term association with the London Coordinating Committee to End Woman Abuse, the Coalition of Media Violence and the Alliance of Canadian Research Centres on Violence.

Ms. Barb MacQuarrie

Barb MacQuarrie is the Community Director of the Centre for Research and Education on Violence against Women & Children at the University of Western Ontario. She works to promote collaboration between community-based professionals and advocates and academic researchers. She has been an advocate for survivors of violence and has worked on diverse fronts to give voice to their experiences of violence as well as their experiences in the systems that are intended to respond to this violence. She has co-authored publications on workplace harassment, violence in the lives of girls, violence on college and university campuses and has written for local anti-violence organizations about the challenges facing front line service providers and the connections between mental health, addictions and trauma. She is the executive producer of the video, "The Way Forward: Rethinking the problem of workplace sexual harassment" and an executive producer for the just released video, "Voices of Diversity: Creating a culture of safety, respect and belonging on campus." Recently, she coordinated the writing and publication of the Surviving the System Handbook. Advice on using the legal system if you are a survivor of sexual violence. Ms. MacQuarrie manages the provincial Neighbours, Friends and Families public education campaign and the Respect-at-Work training program. She chairs the Muslim Family Support Service in London. She is interested in how research can inform prevention of and responses to violence against women and girls. Ms. MacQuarrie is a member of many local, provincial and national committees and boards and has had a long term association with the London Coordinating Committee to End Woman Abuse and the Alliance of Canadian Research Centres on Violence.

Dr. Helene Berman

Helene Berman is an Associate Professor in the University Of Western Ontario School Of Nursing and the Scotiabank Chair, Centre for Research and Education on Violence against Women and Children. Her research has focused on violence in the lives of children and has included homeless, Aboriginal, and newcomer youth who have experienced marginalization, trauma, uprooting, and displacement. She was the Principal Investigator on two national studies examining how girls and young women are socialized to expect violence, its effects on their health, and implications for policy makers and programmers. Dr. Berman's research has been funded by the Canadian Institutes of Health Research (CIHR), SSHRC, and Status of Women Canada. The theoretical and methodological perspectives used are informed by critical and feminist theory, intersectionality, participatory approaches, and narrative analysis. Dr. Berman is a member of many local, provincial and national committees and boards and has had a long term association with the Faculty of Health Sciences, the Nurses' Network on Violence against Women and is past Chairperson of the Alliance of Canadian Research Centres on Violence.

Ms. Maria Callaghan

Maria Callaghan is the Manager of The Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women and Children. In this role she oversees the day to day operation of the Centre, manages Centre finances, human resources, event planning, and develops outreach tools, such as the newsletter and website. She also acts as a liaison between the University, Community Agencies and the greater London community. From 2005-2008 Ms. Callaghan was also a National Coordinator for the research initiative, "Intersecting Sites of Violence in the Lives of Girls at the Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women and Children. Ms. Callaghan previously worked for ten years as a Financial Analyst at General Motors of Canada Ltd. where she was a past member and Treasurer of the General Motors National Women's Advisory Council. In her role on the National Advisory Council Maria chaired the first GM Canada National Women's Conference on Diversity in Detroit Michigan.

Lina Rodriguez

Lina Rodriguez works part-time as an Administrative Assistant at The Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women and Children. In this role she works with the Centre Manager to ensure the smooth daily operation of the Centre. She has been a part of numerous projects at the CREVAWC including evaluating curriculum materials for the Tools for Change project and as a Peer Facilitator and summer Research Assistant in “The Intersecting Sites of Violence in the Lives of Girls” project.

Marcie Campbell

Marcie Campbell received her B.A in Psychology from the University of Western Ontario (2005), and is a graduate of the Masters in Counselling Psychology program at the Faculty of Education (2007). She has received training in counselling male batterers and sex offenders through her work with Changing Ways, an agency that works with abusive men in the London area. In her role as Research Assistant at The Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women and Children, Ms. Campbell conducts research on issues related to woman abuse, with specific attention to the role of the perpetrators. Currently she is conducting research, in association with Changing Ways, on how to effectively engage with male perpetrators of domestic violence to prevent the reoccurrence or escalation of violence against women. Since 2006, Ms. Campbell has been the research assistant for the Domestic Violence Death Review Committee (DVDRC) of Ontario. Her role as research assistant includes updating the statistical databases, conducting research reviews on issues regarding domestic

Joy Lang

Joy Lang was the founding Director of the Chatham Kent Women's Centre Inc. for 21 years (1979-2000). She was actively involved in enhancing services and training related to woman abuse in her county and across the province of Ontario. Ms. Lang was a founding Director of the Chatham-Kent County Task Force on Family Violence and the Chatham-Kent County Child Abuse Co-ordinating Committee. She has continued to be involved in the areas of woman abuse, sexual harassment, homelessness and domestic violence through her participation in research and clinical services at The Centre for Children and Families in the Justice System of the London Family Court Clinic, The Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women and Children at the University of Western Ontario, the London Homeless Coalition and The London Co-ordinating Committee to End Woman Abuse.

COMMUNITY AND ACADEMIC RESEARCH ASSOCIATES

In keeping with our commitment to collaborative research partnerships between diverse communities and the academic community, the Centre has established two affiliations: Community Research Associates and Academic Research Associates.

These Research Associate positions provide an affiliation to the Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women and Children, and to the University of Western Ontario. These positions formalize the relationship between those who recognize the many contributions to the work of the Centre made by diverse community members and academic researchers.

The Centre reviews and accepts Research Associates for a renewable three year term on an ongoing basis which must be approved by the Centre's Advisory Board.

Currently the Centre has affiliations with fourteen Academic Research Associates and nine Community Research Associates.

For more information on our Research Associates as well as a complete list please see Appendix E.

ADJUNCT FACULTY

For a list of Adjunct Faculty members please see Appendix F.

PARTNERSHIPS

The Centre's role is to facilitate partnerships with researchers, community groups as well as provincial and national coalitions and alliances to pursue questions that enhance the understanding of violence against women and children. For a complete list of our partners please see Appendix G and H.

MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE

The Centre is governed by a Management Committee that reports to the Dean of Education. The Management Committee is responsible for overseeing the direction and management of CREVAWC as well as for supporting the goals of CREVAWC and facilitating its initiatives as a Faculty-based centre within the University.

For more information on the Management Committee as well as a list of members please see Appendix I.

ADVISORY BOARD

The Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women and Children was founded as a collaborative venture among The University of Western Ontario, Fanshawe College and the London Coordinating Committee to End Women Abuse. When the Centre was first established in 1992, it had a Board that represented the founding partners and board members were involved in developing the centre including active involvement in budget and personnel decisions. Since 2001 when the Centre joined the Faculty of Education at the University of Western Ontario, the Board's role has become more of an advisory function with the management left to UWO and the centre administrative team.

For more information on the Advisory Board as well as a list of members please see Appendix J.

PUBLIC & PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION

Invited Addresses and Workshops:

The Centre conducted over 30 public and professional workshops on the issue of violence against women and children for an estimated 6,000 professionals and community groups across Canada, United States and other countries in 2009.

Please refer to the list in the Appendix K for more information.

Consultations:

The Centre consults virtually on a daily basis with provincial and federal government senior staff and committees on policy and legislative changes. As well, we consult with agencies, journalists and students across Canada seeking updated resources and research on violence against women and children. Some examples are outlined below:

In the past year Ms. MacQuarrie appeared before the Standing Committee on Social Policy to speak on Bill 133. She consulted with staff in the Ministry of the Attorney General dealing with reform to family law process and changes to restraining orders provisions in cases of domestic violence.

Dr. Jaffe was part of the Advisory Panel to the Cornwall Inquiry on historical sexual abuse and the Chief Coroner's Domestic Violence Death Review Committee. The Centre staff have been consulted by other provincial governments on domestic homicides, research on risk assessment in domestic violence cases and violence prevention programs in schools. Dr. Berman offered consultation to the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario in their Best Practice Guideline on Violence in the Workplace.

The Centre has assisted students and community agencies in regards to a wide range of topics including developing a library on Violence against Aboriginal Women & Girls, prostitution and decriminalization, the Safe Schools Action Team Report, research on domestic violence for a refugee claimant who has experience significant intimate partner domestic violence, risk management with a violent sexual offender and screening domestic violence cases by health care professionals.

Community Forums Hosted by CREVAWC:

As part of the Centre's mandate to pursue research questions and create a community dialogue to understand and prevent abuse the Centre facilitates forums throughout the year to further the discussion and enhance community knowledge.

Please refer to the Appendix L for details on forums held in 2009.

Major CREVAWC Provincial & National Conferences:

Safe, Respectful and Inclusive Workplaces: Stakeholders and Strategies Conference, May 2009.

Four Plenary Panels and twenty-four workshops offered an immersion in issues related to workplace discrimination, harassment, bullying & violence. Presenters shared expertise on law, policies and practices. Anita Hill was the keynote speaker for a diverse audience of stakeholders including labour, management, academics, legislators, policy experts, community advocates, woman abuse experts, human resource professionals, health and safety specialists, trainers, consultants, equity officers and individuals who have experienced unsafe, disrespectful, exclusionary workplaces.

Canadian Conference on the Prevention of Domestic Homicides, June 2009.

The National Homicide Prevention Conference drew 500 professionals from multiple disciplines and justice, health and social service agencies from all over Canada, US, Australia and New Zealand. The focus was on lessons learned from domestic homicide research and death review committees in different jurisdictions. The majority of homicides were seen to be preventable through better public education, enhanced training and improved collaboration amongst service providers. The conference has set the stage for new national and international research projects in this area.

Rethinking Relationships Conference: Engaging Youth, Connecting Communities, November 2009.

The “Rethinking Relationships: Engaging Youth, Connecting Communities” conference showcased innovative ways that adults and diverse groups of youth can work together toward the promotion of healthy and equal relationships. Attended by close to 500 youth and adult leaders from across Ontario, many of the initiatives were developed in collaboration with youth. Most of the sessions were led by youth, were interactive, and included arts-based activities, demonstrating how ‘safe spaces’ could be created. The notion of “rethinking relationships” implies that we need to collectively and individually ‘rethink’ how we conceptualize and enact relationships in our everyday lives.

COMMUNICATION AND KNOWLEDGE TRANSFER

Publications

The Centre contributes knowledge transfer in the area of violence against women through the wide variety of articles they have written and published.

Please see Appendix M for a complete list of articles published in 2009.

Selected Media Coverage

Print Media

The media highlights the activities and the events of CREVAWC. In addition, the Centre staff is called upon to respond to current community, provincial and national incidents that surround the issue of violence against women and children.

Print Media

During 2009 The CREVAWC contributed to a tremendous number of articles written by the print media.

COMMUNITY AWARDS AND GRANTS

Scotiabank Community Research Internship

Through the generous support of the Scotiabank, the Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women and Children is able to offer one student internship annually, to an eligible full-time undergraduate or graduate student at the University of Western Ontario. This student, selected by the community organization, will work together on a project that has been designed by the organization.

The student intern is awarded $5,000 and the collaborating agency is awarded $2,150.

Scotiabank Community Research Grants

Through the generous support of the Scotiabank, the Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women and Children is able to offer funding for community research grants. We are looking to fund research and action projects that explicitly aim to contribute to the understanding, documentation, analysis, and prevention of the social problem of violence against women and children. Research projects funded by the Scotiabank community grants program must include a gender analysis of relevant issues. We are particularly interested in projects based on research partnerships. We strongly encourage applications that link theory and practice, and that clearly spell out the practical and policy implications of the proposed projects.

Three research grants up to $5,000 each will be awarded annually to community organizations or to individuals who are supported by one or more community organizations. Proposals for research that will evaluate or develop the current work of organizations engaged in anti-violence work will be considered.

Scotiabank Student Research Assistant Awards for Studies in Violence against Women and Children

To be eligible for a Scotiabank student award an individual must meet the following criteria:

- Be enrolled full time at the University of Western Ontario in any undergraduate program
- Have a demonstrated interest in the area of anti-violence advocacy and / or research on violence against women and children

The following are assets to any application for a Scotiabank Student Research Assistant Award:

- An involvement in and connection to a community agency (or agencies) whose work addresses issues relating to violence against women and children
- An involvement in Centre activities (including Centre committees and research projects)

Two student Research Assistant Awards of $3750 are awarded annually.

APPENDIX A

RESEARCH PRIORITIES

The Centre initiates and seeks funding for projects relating to the following themes:

- Healthy relationships
- Violence and its impact on health and well being
- Gender inequality and its interactions with:
 - Racism
 - Ableism
 - Homophobia
 - Classism
 - Ageism
 - or other forms of social exclusion

The Centre conducts research and education that is relevant to practice, policy development and legislative reform:

- Families and intimate relationships
- Justice systems
- Educational systems
- Health and mental health care systems
- Social service systems
- Workplaces
- Communities and community institutions
- Anti-violence agencies

Activities and Approaches include:

Research:

- Participatory approaches
- Diverse research methodologies, including qualitative and quantitative designs
- Program development and evaluation
- Identification of emerging issues and important debates
- Interdisciplinary collaboration among community and academic researchers
- Dissemination of research findings: locally, provincially, nationally, internationally

Education:

- Public awareness
- Professional development
- Multidisciplinary curriculum development and implementation for undergraduate, graduate, and professional programs

Community Development:

- To build capacity for the development and implementation of anti-violence initiatives
- To support community-based programs
- To promote promising practices

H. Berman (UWO) and R. Mason, University of Toronto. Dr. Alvernaz Mulcahy's most recent poetry book was published in December 2009—Borderlands and Bloodlines, Kegeponce Press. Her documentary films highlighting the Downtown Eastside Vancouver and the missing Indigenous women across Canada have been shown nationally and internationally along with her photography.

Mohammed Baobaid, PhD.

Executive Director, Muslim Resource Centre for Support and Integration
Adjunct Professor, Faculty of Education, University of Western Ontario

Mohammed Baobaid earned his doctoral degree from the institute of Psychology at the University of Erlangen Nurnberg in Germany. He is the founder of the Muslim Family Safety Project that addresses domestic violence in the Muslim community of London, Ontario. Dr. Baobaid is currently the executive director of the Muslim Resource Centre for Social Support and Integration. He is also a research associate at the Centre for Research and Education on Violence against Women and Children at the University of Western Ontario.

His research areas include cross-cultural perspectives on preventing domestic violence in Muslim and Arab Communities. In addition, he has trained mainstream service providers about working with Muslim families affected by domestic violence. Dr. Baobaid was the second recipient of Every Day Hero Award of the Centre for Research and Education on Violence against Women and Children. He is also on the list of the 500 most influential Muslims that was published by the Royal Islamic Strategic Studies Centre in Jordan and the the Prince Alwaleed Bin Talal Center for Muslim-Christian Understanding at Georgetown University.

Claire Crooks, PhD., CPsych.

Associate Director, CAMH Centre for Prevention Science
Adjunct Professor, Faculty of Education, Faculty of Health Sciences and Psychology Department, University of Western Ontario

Claire Crooks is the Associate Director of the CAMH Centre for Prevention Science. She is also an Adjunct Professor in the Faculties of Education and Health Sciences and the Psychology Department at the University of Western Ontario. She is the Principal Investigator of a 4-year project funded by the Public Health Agency of Canada on adapting best practices in violence prevention for use with Aboriginal youth. As part of this project, Dr. Crooks is the lead author on a toolkit for service providers that was created based on contributions from community partners, researchers, and service providers around the country. Dr. Crooks is a co-founder of the Caring Dads program, a parenting intervention for men who have maltreated their children. In addition to being an author of the program manual, she has been involved with training, consultation, and research on the Caring Dads project.

Dr. Crooks is co-author of more than 40 articles, chapters, and books on topics including children's exposure to domestic violence, child custody and access, child maltreatment, adolescent dating violence and risk behaviour, intervening with fathers who maltreat their children, strength-based programming for Aboriginal youth, and trauma. She is actively involved with training judges, lawyers, and other court personnel through her work as a faculty member for both the U.S. National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges, and the American Bar Association Commission on Domestic Violence. She conducts training in the areas of custody and access evaluations, violence prevention, bullying, media violence, vicarious trauma, and self-harm among adolescents. She has testified before the Canadian Senate Committee on Human Rights about the intersection between domestic violence and child custody as a children's rights issue. Dr. Crooks is a co-author of Adolescent Risk Behaviours: Why teens experiment and strategies to keep them safe (2006, Yale University Press). She is on the editorial board of the Violence Against Women journal. Dr. Crooks received her undergraduate education at Princeton University in New Jersey and obtained her M.A. and Ph.D. from Queen's University in Ontario.

David Wolfe, Ph.D., ABPP

RBC Chair in Children's Mental Health
Centre for Addiction and Mental Health
Adjunct Professor, Faculty of Education, University of Western Ontario

Dr. David Wolfe is a psychologist and author specializing in issues affecting children and youth. He holds the inaugural RBC Chair in Children's Mental Health at the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH), where he is Head of the Centre for Prevention Science located in London. He is a Professor of Psychiatry and Psychology at the University of Toronto, and Editor-in-Chief of Child Abuse & Neglect: The International Journal. His recent book is entitled Adolescent Risk Behaviours: Why teens experiment and strategies to keep them safe (with P. Jaffe & C. Crooks; Yale University Press, 2006).

Dr. Wolfe has broad research and clinical interests in abnormal child and adolescent psychology, with a special focus on child abuse, domestic violence, and developmental psychopathology. He has authored numerous articles on these topics, especially in relationship to the impact of early childhood trauma on later development in childhood, adolescence, and early adulthood. Dr. Wolfe has been pioneering new approaches to preventing many societal youth problems such as bullying, relationship violence, and substance abuse. He recently received the Donald O. Hebb Award for Distinguished Contributions to Psychology as a Science from the Canadian Psychological Association, and the Blanche L. Ittleson Award for Outstanding Achievement in the Delivery of Children's Services and the Promotion of Children's Mental Health from the American Orthopsychiatric Association.

The FOURTH R

A Research Collaboration between the University of Western Ontario - Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women & Children, Faculty of Education and CAMH-Centre for Prevention Science

Project Team

David Wolfe, Ph.D. , RBC Chair in Children’s Mental Health (CAMH), Director, CAMH Centre for Prevention Science, Professor, University of Toronto; Claire Crooks, Ph.D. , CAMH Centre for Prevention Science and Centre for Research and Education on Violence against Women and Children, Faculty of Education, Western; Ray Hughes, M.Ed. ,CAMH Centre for Prevention Science and Faculty of Education, Western; Peter Jaffe, Ph.D. ,Professor, Faculty of Education, Western ; Deb Chiodo, M.A., M.Ed., Manager CPS, PhD Student, Faculty of Education, Western.

A Synopsis

The Fourth R is a school based violence prevention program that grew out of a long-standing collaboration between David Wolfe when he was in the Psychology Department at The University of Western Ontario and Peter Jaffe when he was Director of the London Family Court Clinic. Since 1980 they had been working on child abuse and domestic violence initiatives and have increasingly turned their focus to violence prevention in schools.

At the time of the 4thR development, Ray Hughes was the Safe Schools Coordinator for the Thames Valley District School Board who was seconded to the Fourth R Project at Faculty of Education, The University of Western Ontario as an educator specializing in curriculum development and teacher training. Claire Crooks was a post-doctoral student shared by David Wolfe and Peter Jaffe

The Fourth R received an initial One Million Dollar grant from Royal LePage (2004-9) which allowed the project to move beyond the London Ontario area to schools across Canada. The Royal LePage donation is held by the Faculty of Education, The University of Western Ontario with a term that the allocation of funds is the responsibility of David Wolfe who is now the RBC Chair at the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH), Professor of Psychiatry and Psychology, OISE/University of Toronto but remains an Adjunct Professor in the Faculty of Education, The University of Western Ontario. There are multiple grants related to the Fourth R held either by The University of Western Ontario or the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health, University of Toronto which require active research and administrative collaboration. The Fourth R started as part of the Grade 9 health and physical education program. The Fourth R curriculum is now integrated into the mainstream curriculum and has expanded to different provinces, grade levels and subject areas. In 2009 there are schools in 5 US communities that are incorporating the Fourth R curriculum as part of a major violence prevention initiative.

The proceeds of sales of the Fourth R go to CAMH and are reinvested in curriculum development, training and research on Fourth R related activities. The University of Western Ontario and the Centre for Research & Education on Violence against Women & Children receive overhead for the administrative costs. The University of Western Ontario is part of a SSHRC Cluster Grant, a seven year contract in the amount of Two Million Dollars. This funding is to enhance research and practice in school based violence prevention through four provinces. The National Coordinator is Ray Hughes who retired from the school board and is now a University of Western, PMA , Contract employee.

Goals of the Fourth R

The Fourth R is a relationship-based curriculum for preventing dating violence and other high-risk adolescent behaviours and promotes healthy adolescent relationships. As part of the program development it provides initial training in the curriculum to all teachers using it, as well as providing ongoing support and professional development for teachers.

The Fourth R curriculum is one component to a whole-school approach to violence prevention and healthy-relationships promotion. To ensure youth engagement in the curriculum, Youth Committees were formed in each school. The Youth Committee is an Antiviolence Steering Committee which is led by youth with a teacher-facilitator to highlight adolescent relationships issues in the school and create awareness of problems and solutions for teens that involve community agencies. The program also links parents with schools. The parent component involves a newsletter which goes home from grade nine students to parents stating what the students think parents should know about teens and sex, substances, and violence. It is supplemented by our literature on healthy adolescent development.

Fourth R grants and donations are held at both Western and CAMH. Some examples of grants held at Western include Crooks Donation – Curriculum development and implementation of Fourth R in Western Canada, Royal LePage – National Implementation of Fourth R, Canadian Women’s Foundation, Population Health Fund National – Enhancing programming for aboriginal peoples; development of toolkit , PHF Translation and Dissemination – Extension of national grant, dissemination and translation of “Engaging and Empowering Aboriginal Youth: A Toolkit for Service Providers” toolkit across Canada. Grants held at CAMH include Carthy Donation – Implementation of Fourth R in Alberta, Ontario Ministry of Attorney General – Aboriginal Fourth R and programming, OESC Bullying/Research– Development of anti-bullying lessons to add to Fourth R for Alternative Education, RBC donation – Implementation of Fourth R in Toronto schools and a SSHRC Knowledge mobilization grant on violence prevention programs in schools.
